Strawberry Growers Assured That Crop Will Be Shipped

Trucks To Haul Berries From Paducah Monday

Plans have been made to take care of the local strawberry crop even though the embargo on perishable foods went into effect on the N.C. and St. L. railroad at 12:01 this morning, according to an announcement by E. S. Barger, secretary of the McCracken County Strawberry Growers Association.

Officials of the railroad have agreed to ship strawberries today even though the embargo is in effect. Starting Monday, said Barger, strawberry shipments from Paducah will be made by truck.

Growers in this community take their berries to Benton where they are loaded in refrigerated cars and shipped to Paducah for routing by the Strawberry Growers Association.

Although the recent rain and cold weather has retarded the strawberry crop and caused an estimated loss of 5 per cent, sudden warm weather would cause the berries to ripen fast. If shipping facilities were not available now, the growers would lose a large percentage of their crop.

Barger advised local growers to sell their Blackmore to processors in Paducah after today. He said although the berries must be stemmed, the growers will still make a good profit.

INFLATED EGGS
E. H. Miller, Ledger and Times correspondent of Hazel Route 2, estimated today that inflation had finally reached its laying hens. He brought in an egg this morning that measured six inches around the short way and 7 1/2 inches around the long way. The hen is a white leghorn and lays a large egg nearly every day, Mr. Miller said. The eggs have two and sometimes three yolks.

Mr. Miller who writes under the name of Bulldog is a regular contributor of a weekly column to the Ledger and Times.

Mrs. Ed Filbeck left yesterday for a few days visit with her daughter Mrs. B. D. Hall and Mr. Hall in Memphis.

International Situation in Brief

Peace Comes To Jerusalem

JERUSALEM, May 8 (UP)—Peace came to Jerusalem today for the first time since last November when a truce between the warring Jews and Arabs became effective at noon.

Not a single shot was heard throughout the city in the first hours after the cease fire agreement came into force. The Holy city had not known such a lull since the partitioning decision touched off the hostilities in Palestine.

Russians Withdraw From Korea

SEOUL, Korea, May 8 (UP)—Lt. Gen. P. G. Korotkov, Soviet occupation commander in North Korea, announced today that Russia has completed arrangements for the immediate withdrawal of Russian troops from North Korea. He did not specify when they would leave.

The Russian announcement was made in a letter addressed to Kim Doo Bong, No. 2 Soviet puppet in North Korea and chairman of the recent north-south Korean political conference held in Pyongyang, capital of the Soviet occupation zone. The letter was broadcast by Radio Pyongyang.

"The government of the U.S.S.R. has had the necessary arrangements made for immediate withdrawal of its troops from Korea in order to make American troops withdraw from Korea simultaneously," the letter said.

Prewar Premier Of Burma Executed

RANGOON, May 8 (UP)—U. Saw, prewar premier of Burma, and five other men were hanged early today for the July 19 assassination of Premier U Aung and six of his cabinet ministers.

The hangings were private. U Saw and three others went to the gallows at 5:30 a.m. at Insein jail, nine miles from Rangoon, while two others were hanged concurrently in downtown Rangoon central jail.

Witnesses reported U Saw was robed in white and wore a white mask. He swayed slightly just before the trap was sprung, but otherwise remained emotionless.

Communist Candidates Lose

ROME, May 8 (UP)—Independent Ivanoe Bonomi was elected president of the Italian Senate and Christian Democrat Giovanni Gronchi was named head of the National Assembly today as Italy's first freely elected Parliament in 25 years held its inaugural meeting.

Communist candidates composed the opposition in both houses. They were defeated 198 to 111 in the Senate and 314 to 164 in the Assembly, indicating Premier Alcide De Gasperi's anti-communist majority in Parliament.

In addition to being on the organ faculty of the School of Church Music, he serves the Hazelwood Baptist Church, Louisville, as choir director and organist.

WASHINGTON, May 8 (UP)—The white house today denied that any proposal has been made for a 20-day postponement of the threatened nationwide railroad strike.

The statement came from white house Press Secretary Charles G. Ross just a few minutes before Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman met with four representatives of the railroads. Steelman conferred twice yesterday with chiefs of the three unions which have called a strike for 6 a.m. Tuesday.

Asked if Steelman had any specific plans to present to the industry representatives, Ross said, "I am not at liberty to talk about that."

He also was asked if there was any greater or lesser degree of hope today for a settlement. Ross said the President is always hopeful that a settlement may be reached and the strike averted.

If no settlement can be reached by Monday, the government is expected to seize the railroads and put them under nominal control of the Army.

A high official expressed confidence that the unions would cancel their strike call and continue at work if the government takes over.

The four top representatives of the railroads went into conference with Steelman at 11:15 a.m. EDT. The presidential assistant was prepared to explore with them the proposals which the union leaders gave him yesterday as their minimum terms of settling the dispute.

The operators committee that met with Steelman comprised William T. Farley, president of the American Association of Railroad Employees, Daniel P. Loomis of Chicago, chairman of the Western Carriers Conference committee; Herbert A. Enoch of Philadelphia, chairman of the eastern carriers; and Charles D. McKay of Washington, chairman of the southeastern group.

Name Band To Appear In Murray Wednesday

Johnny Long, young America's favorite band leader, brings his recording orchestra to Murray State Teachers College Wednesday, May 12. Featured with the band is Natalie, little Hawaiian songstress, the Beachcombers, Janet Brace and drummer Floyd Sullivan.

Johnny Long is probably the top-name band leader who plays violin "in reverse." At the age of six, a pig bit his hand, severed the tendons and forced Johnny to reverse his fingers. Now he bows with his left hand and fingers with the right, the reverse of every other violinist in the business. He plays a specially-made violin.

Natalie, tiny singer with the band, is the only native Hawaiian now singing with a name-band. She was the first girl to be heard on the Hawaiian radio and was known as "Little Natalie."

"The Beachcombers" quartet have been with Johnny Long since late 1945. This is their first professional job together. They had been a member of the Maurice Evans special service troupe and traveled all over the South Pacific during the war.

The orchestra is an all-around unit. They feel equally at home with all types of songs, but tend to play a "solid-sweet" course, as Johnny says. He feels you should be able to "hear the melody" in which most dancers agree.

Johnny Long is perhaps best known for his "patter-chorus" tunes. He is world famous for his recording of "Shantytown," "Blue Skies," "Just Like That," "When I Grow Too Old To Dream" and others.

Kentucky Lake State Park Contracts To Be Let Before June 1

DEVELOPMENTS SHOW RUSSIA MAY WANT SHOWDOWN

WASHINGTON, May 8 (UP)—The house armed services committee said today recent world developments indicated that Russia "may now be willing to risk a showdown with the United States."

In a report urging speedy revival of the draft, the committee said "aggressive and dangerous" Soviet actions have brought to the forefront "a possibility that appeared remote six months ago."

"The committee is convinced," the report said, "that these actions raise the new and ominous possibility that the Soviet Union may now be willing to risk a showdown, on the assumption that the future can bring only a worsening of the Soviet position."

The house group cited the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia, pressure on Finland and the Soviet "restrictions" on U. S. occupation forces in Germany.

Prompt enactment of the 19-through-25 draft bill, the committee said, is a "necessary response" to these Russian moves.

However, a five-man minority on the armed services committee issued a separate report condemning the draft bill as a "program for war."

The minority accused the Army of stalling on its voluntary recruiting program to make the draft and Universal Military Training appear necessary.

The house bill is expected to come up on the floor for a vote May 17 or 18.

Both the senate and house were in recess for the weekend, but there were these developments: Oleo-Congressional farm leaders said the fight over oleomargarine may prevent passage of a long-range farm program at this session. They said dairy state legislators are so embittered over the oleo tax repeal that they may turn down any program the southerners want. Dixie congressmen led the fight for repeal in the house and are now pushing the bill in the senate.

"Tough talk"—Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, R. Mass., suggested that the Air Force let President Truman and the state department do the "tough talking" about Russia. He criticized a statement by Gen. George C. Kenney, Air Force bombing chief, to the effect that Russia soon may be tempting to attack this country. Lodge said the question of imminence of war is one for the President to answer. He also took issue with Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington's remark that Russia may go to war as soon as she has the atomic bomb.

Taft-Hartley—Rep. J. Frank Wilson, D. Tex., said he will ask the house to consider amending the Taft-Hartley law to limit the jurisdiction of the national-labor-relations board. He said some way should be found to "prevent this situation in which the meaning of the law is being stretched."

Wilson is a member of the house executive expenditures committee which held hearings on the labor board yesterday.

Red Network—Rep. F. Edward Herbert, D. La., said the federal communications commission illegally granted radio broadcast licenses to two aliens. He asked the house un-American activities committee to investigate. Herbert did not name the aliens. Earlier, he had charged that the FCC was helping to set up a "Red Network" by granting licenses to an alleged Communist.

Enamelers Take Second Win From Assembly Dept.

The Enameling Department spotted the Assembly Department four runs in the first inning, and then came through to win in the second game of the Murray Manufacturing Co. Interdepartmental Softball League Wednesday afternoon.

The fracas started with southpaw Earl Cooper pitching for the Enamelers. He allowed the second batter to walk to first, and cleanup man Jimmie Payne came to the plate and knocked the first pitch over the left fielder's head for a round tripper, bringing an early lead of two runs.

However, this lead was knocked into a cocked hat in the last half of the first when Hafford Sills, starting pitcher for the Enamel Department, allowed the first man to hit and walked four men out of the next six to come to the plate. They had to call the fire department to get them out. With this being done, the second frame was played with neither side scoring.

Sills was replaced by Jim Payne in the second, and Cooper was replaced by John Sammons in the seventh.

Score by innings:
Enamelers 294 112 0-10
Assembly 600 000 1-7
Remember: There is a game every Monday and Wednesday afternoon at 4:30. You are invited.

Letter From Dr. Woods Tells Of Fear In Greece

"Food, fuel, fear and frustration are the four prominent 'F's' in Greece," Dr. Ralph H. Woods, Murray State president, said in a report from Athens where he is a member of the American Aid Mission.

Dr. Woods is on temporary leave of absence from Murray State and is working with training specialists and representatives of the Greek government.

"My guess is that Greece would already have been in Communist hands if it had not been for American aid," Dr. Woods declared. The Murray educator stated that the Greek people are living in constant fear of guerrillas who have "much equipment and money with which to sabotage and wage warfare." Dr. Woods said, however, that there is high hope among some people that the guerrilla situation will be under control by fall.

Dr. Woods is working primarily with the agricultural program in Greece. In his work with the Ministry of Agriculture he has established rural training programs for training in such fields as farm machinery operation and repair, building maintenance, and road repair. "The Greek government is interested in training people for greater efficiency in the production and utilization of food," Dr. Woods said. "Food is the most pressing problem in Greece."

As a part of his work in that country, Dr. Woods has made a study of several Greek educational institutions.

Local contractors were invited today to bid on new structures planned for Kentucky Lake State Park, according to P. B. Ghoslon, executive secretary of the Murray Chamber of Commerce.

Bids are being advertised now for erection of a bath house at Kentucky Lake State Park, according to an announcement by Lucy Smith, director, Division of State Parks.

Mr. Ghoslon has received correspondence from Henry Ward, commissioner of conservation, advising him that plans and specifications for additional projects have been completed, and that the bids will be advertised soon. He expressed a desire that as many local contractors as possible be advised of these projects.

Future plans for Kentucky Lake State Park include building of two shelter houses at an estimated cost of $17,000.00; a superintendent's home at a cost of $11,000.00; a water supply system estimated at $30,000.00; storage and shop building at a cost of $9,500.00 and a $5,000.00 latrine building.

Mr. Ward said that indications are that bids for the construction of the shelter houses may be advertised within a week or ten days. He indicated that plans may be completed so that contracts for all the work at Kentucky Lake State Park can be awarded before July 1.

Witness Questions Benefit To Housing If House Is Torn Down Where One Goes Up

By HARMON W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 8 (UP)—Problem:

You have a house you take a good sharp axe, chop some down, and build another. How many houses do you have?

"One," shouted Rep. Fred Smith of Ohio. "It's as simple as all that. Smith, who carries a black doctor's pill box when he isn't carrying a briefcase to congress, was getting himself worked into a suds over senate bill 866. It's a measure that would establish some kind of a 'housing objective'."

"An objective is fine, said the old doc, wagging both index fingers at the witness appearing before the banking and currency committee of the house. The witness was white-haired, dignified John Taylor Egan, the public housing administrator."

"But what good asked the always-inquisitive man from the buckeye state is an objective in housing if you don't have any more houses when you get through?"

Mr. Egan adjusted his silver-rimmed specs and suggested that the doc, maybe, ought to pull his scapular over to the haw side and have a close look at the patient's bill in question. Read it through to the end—page 115.

It says right there on page 38, said Egan, that the federal government plans to help build a lot of housing in the next five years. About six billion bucks worth. Around 100,000 units a year.

Yes, butted in Doc Smith, and how about all this clearance stuff in the bill? It says you clear out a slum area and then build new places.

"I don't see any more new houses in that," he cried.

Mr. Egan allowed a lot of things would grow on vacant lots that never grew before. Houses. Then he patient, explained that to his mind, wiping out slums is awful important. Eliminating places where some 18,000,000 Americans live in "squalor, and giving someplace decent to live."

Doc Smith then said he thought maybe he jumbled a little politics in the committee room air.

"How do all these people interested in slum clearance vote?" He demanded. "Don't they vote for the people who will do 'em the most good?"

Mr. Egan snapped sharply that he was no Dr. Gallup and didn't go around feeling the public pulse.

Earlier, for a minute there, the credit rating of your Uncle Sam teetered a better word under the circumstances "rocked" theoretically, of course.

Doc Smith, again.

He went back to (for him) a local situation, to drive home a nail in the housing situation. Ohio. Didn't he asked the Fed step in and close out a housing project in Youngstown? Almost an eviction, you might say. And after the Federal Government had guaranteed to back up the bargain. Did that discredit the faith and credit of your Uncle Sam?

Well, said Mr. Egan, in that particular case the Ohio city hadn't especially filled its part of the bargain. The Fed, he said, had little choice but to buy back what they had financed in the first place. As that point, handsome Hale Boggs of Louisiana, a member of the committee, spoke up in defense of your Uncle Sam.

Wasn't it true, he asked, that since the U.S. housing act went into effect in 1937, that actually the full credit and faith of the federal government never had been used—or even challenged?

Mr. Egan, stammering and looking relieved, said, indeed, that sure was true.

Meeting dismissed.

CHAPTER XXXV

WHILE Loris was thinking so deeply, Carey was making the usual rounds downtown. He had reached the point of telling employment agencies that he was willing to do anything until he could get something in his own line. Even as he said those words he found himself wondering how many other men had been saying them day after day.

Finally, in sheer desperation, he decided to drop in again at the Pinnacle Employment Agency. At least Mr. Murphy knew him and understood what he was up against. Perhaps something had turned up.

As Carey walked into the shabby reception room, he remembered the first day he had seen Loris there. He sat down in the same chair, wondering if it might bring him luck again.

Carey was still waiting his turn to see Mr. Murphy when the outside door opened and Roland Potter walked into the office. He saw Carey and stopped.

"You are just the man I am looking for."

"Who—me?" Carey was blankly incredulous.

"Yes, you," said Mr. Potter. "Come outside, I want to talk to you."

"Yes, sir," said Carey meekly, following the other man out in the hall.

Mr. Potter took a drawing from his pocket and handed it to Carey. "Did you do this?"

It was one of the sketches Carey had made of the Norman cottage he had discussed so eagerly with Iris Wrenshaw.

"Yes, it's mine. I must have forgotten it when I packed so hurriedly."

"I found it on the table in the studio room. Why didn't you tell me you were designing a house like that?"

He went back to (for him) a local situation, to drive home a nail in the housing situation. Ohio. Didn't he asked the Fed step in and close out a housing project in Youngstown? Almost an eviction, you might say. And after the Federal Government had guaranteed to back up the bargain. Did that discredit the faith and credit of your Uncle Sam?

Well, said Mr. Egan, in that particular case the Ohio city hadn't especially filled its part of the bargain. The Fed, he said, had little choice but to buy back what they had financed in the first place. As that point, handsome Hale Boggs of Louisiana, a member of the committee, spoke up in defense of your Uncle Sam.

Wasn't it true, he asked, that since the U.S. housing act went into effect in 1937, that actually the full credit and faith of the federal government never had been used—or even challenged?

Mr. Egan, stammering and looking relieved, said, indeed, that sure was true.

Meeting dismissed.

MR. POTTER didn't let him finish. "I mean I want to start building those cottages right away. But I want to work on them myself, personally. I'd like you to come to come back to Pottersplace and live with me while you and I complete the plans for the cottages. You and I can superintend their construction and Mrs. Carson can act as sort of glorified housekeeper."

"Yes, sir. But I thought you wanted to talk business."

"I do," said Mr. Potter. "But I wanted you to understand all the angles. Now, about this cottage of yours. I own three lots on the outskirts of Lingenbrook, and I had been wondering what to do with them. I have decided to put up three cottages to rent for the summer, or for the whole year if anyone wants them. Your Norman cottage is just the thing."

"You mean you want—?" Carey began.

"I mean I want to start building those cottages right away. But I want to work on them myself, personally. I'd like you to come to come back to Pottersplace and live with me while you and I complete the plans for the cottages. You and I can superintend their construction and Mrs. Carson can act as sort of glorified housekeeper."

"Yes, sir. But I thought you wanted to talk business."

"I do," said Mr. Potter. "But I wanted you to understand all the angles. Now, about this cottage of yours. I own three lots on the outskirts of Lingenbrook, and I had been wondering what to do with them. ## Murray Womans Club Has Banquet Friday At Last Meeting Before September

The annual Women's Club banquet at the club house last evening at 6:30 brought to a close the yearly meetings until next September. The enjoyable evening began with a delightful dinner, followed by music selections by Miss Virginia Jackson, violinist and Vivian Jones, pianist, Murray State college students.

Miss Mayrele Johnson, president, presided over the business meeting and made the following announcements: The State Convention of Federated Women's Clubs will be held at Covington June 7, 8, 9, 10, and a full delegation of representatives from this club is expected to attend. Each department will be represented.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. J. O. Page, Paducah, treasurer of Kentucky Federated Women's Clubs and also a candidate for next year's state presidency.

Mrs. Page gave an interesting talk, pointing out that women are a tremendous force in the shaping of the world events and stated there are one hundred and twenty national women's organizations.

In speaking of the United Nations, Mrs. Page said "Fifty-eight countries have joined and the UN is as good as it was when it was made in San Francisco. . . we failed to apply it." The speaker also gave a brief review of the UN meeting at Lake Success, N. Y., which she attended. The speaker went on to say "With all its weaknesses, it is the one thing that has kept Soviet Russia and other countries apart. We should rededicate ourselves to the UN before we can make many plans for the future."

Mrs. Page declared "It is up to us to defend the peace we won in the war. We must make the Marshall Plan work," and she also encouraged every eligible person to inform himself thoroughly to vote and let his ballot be his voice in the way the government is run in the future. She said each of us should be very much concerned in the educational system of the country as it prepares each child for marriage, parentage and careers.

The installation ceremony was then performed by Mrs. Page. The new officers and chairmen are: Mrs. George E. Overbey, president; Mrs. Mayrele Johnson, first vice president; Mrs. Garnett Jones, second vice president; Mrs. H. C. Corn, recording secretary; Mrs. H. I. Sted, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. H. Miss Johnson thanked the committees, chairmen and retiring officers for their cooperation through the year and expressed her indebtedness to Mrs. Fred Gingles, former club hostess and Mrs. V. E. Windsor, present club hostess.

Dr. Ella Weithing spoke on behalf of the entire club and expressed her appreciation to Miss Johnson, retiring president, for her excellent leadership during the year and presented her with a silver pitcher, a gift of all the club members.

Miss Johnson then presented the new president, Mrs. Overbey with the gavel and extended her best wishes for a pleasant and successful year. # to Mother....

In her dreams are thoughts of you. On her lips are prayers for you. In her heart is love for you . . . Mother is there when a bump needs kissing, when hunger needs easing, when a broken heart needs mending . . . Her power for good reaches into the past and into the future. She cradles civilization and raises the curtains of darkness to bring sunshine into the home . . . MOTHER'S DAY. How can we crowd into one day, or into a few words, our testimony of Mother's unceasing love and unending devotion? . . .
